ACCREDITED PAYMENTS RISK PROFESSIONAL

CODE OF CONDUCT

Nacha and the payments associations recommend that Accredited Payments Risk Professionals:

1. Continue to acquire knowledge of developments in the field of electronic payments risk management.
 2. Avoid conflicts of interest in which the prospect of personal gain would hinder an objective judgment on behalf of the employer or customer/client.
 3. Refrain from engaging in or participating in any activity that would prejudice the ability to carry out professional responsibilities competently, honestly, and fairly.
 4. Refrain from disclosing proprietary information acquired in the course of professional activities except when authorized to do so.
 5. Avoid intentional abuse of the banking system, including the generation of transactions that have no relationship to normal and reasonable business purposes.
 6. All APRPs are required to abide by Nacha's Code of Conduct.
